

WiC 1325 Fellowship Application Form: July 2026 Cohort

This is a PDF of the application form for applicants to review questions and documentation before applying. All applications must be submitted via the Application Form. Please contact the team if you have any questions.

Background

The Women in Conflict 1325 Fellowship, run by Beyond Borders Scotland and the University of Edinburgh Law School, and funded by the Scottish Government, is based on the principles of foundational UN Security Council Resolution 1325 (UNSCR 1325) which "reaffirms the role of women in the prevention and resolution of conflict, peace negotiations, peacebuilding, peacekeeping, humanitarian response and in post-conflict reconstruction, and stresses the importance of their equal participation in all efforts for the promotion of peace and security". For more information about the history of the Fellowship, please visit Beyond Borders Scotland's website.

The WiC 1325 Fellowship Programme aims to:

- enable the sharing of experiences in relation to UNSCR 1325 and the global Women, Peace, and Security (WPS) agenda; women's roles in peace building and conflict resolution; and gender equality;
- facilitate peer to peer learning, providing a safe space for Fellows to learn from each other through sharing experiences, ideas and challenges faced in their different contexts;
- explore the equal and meaningful participation of women in peace building, peace processes, and more widely in society, including identifying challenges and entry points;
- facilitate a network of women engaged in an on-going learning and experience-sharing process, building a sustainable and evolving Alumnae Network and Community of Practice;
- provide guidance, expert perspectives, and resources on various topics including: WPS, conflict analysis, mediation, transitional justice, the climate-gender-conflict nexus, arts as a tool for peacebuilding, and trauma-informed practice and self-care;
- give an insight into Scottish culture, history, and experiences of political devolution.

The July Programme

The July programme will focus on women's meaningful participation in peacebuilding. The week-long residential programme will include sessions and experiences on the topics outlined above, as well as an opportunity to develop connections and solidarity amongst the cohort. There will be some online sessions both pre- and post-residential Fellowship to expand the learning and facilitate sessions delivered by the global Fellowship Alumnae.

- The programme will take place over a week in Edinburgh and the Scottish Borders from 20th-25th July 2026 (with travel on 19th and 26th);
- It will involve workshop-style sessions and some cultural experiences;
- The programme in Scotland will be conducted entirely in English;
- The programme is fully funded and supported including travel, accommodation, sustenance, and visa application costs. The BBS and ELS teams cannot guarantee Fellows will be granted visas but will support thoroughly during the application process;
- In total, 15 applicants will be selected for the July cohort.

Eligibility

The teams at BBS and ELS believe that a diverse range of perspectives and experiences strengthen peacebuilding efforts for all and welcome applications from individuals of all backgrounds. Those with accessibility needs are especially encouraged to apply.

The programme is open to women from conflict-affected countries with significant professional experience working in peacebuilding and/ or women's rights and relevant/ adjacent fields. Those with a background using arts for peacebuilding are also encouraged to apply. Please look at our Alumnae profiles to learn more about those on our Fellowship programmes.

How to apply

To apply, please complete the below application form. You can download a PDF version of the application form to review questions before completing it on our website.

The form will ask you for personal details including your name, contact information, nationality/ country, current professional position and organisation (including contract length), level of English language, and some questions regarding the UK Visa process.

The form will then ask core questions about your expectations and potential benefit from the Fellowship, followed by a selection of thematic questions relating to core Fellowship topics.

Finally, you will be asked to upload* PDFs of:

- your most up-to-date CV;
- a reference letter for the Fellowship;
- and a copy of your passport.

*You will need a Google account to upload these.

While the teams understand that AI may be used for expression in written English, we are most interested in your authentic voice and getting to know you through the application. The Fellowship team will not review applications clearly relying on AI to write responses.

The deadline for applications is 20th May 2026. The BBS and ELS teams reserve the right to close applications early in the case of an overwhelming number of applications.

If you have any questions about the Fellowship or application form please contact our team on fellowship@beyondbordersscotland.com
